'Research on and from Transnistria'

with

Mihai Mogildea

(Institute for European Policies and Reforms, Chisinau)

'The DCFTA application in the Transnistrian region:
Assesing the impact on the local economy and commercial balance'

and

Anatolii Dirun

(Tiraspol Interregional University, Tiraspol)

'Political parties in Moldova and Transnistria under the conditions of conflict'

The protracted conflict between Moldova and Transnistria is one of main obstacles for the economic, political and social development of the region. Since the escalation of the conflict in Eastern Ukraine, the Transnistrian conflict is increasingly seen through the lens of geopolitics and great power rivalry. This trend has led to a marginalising of the role of domestic elites and processes in international academic discourses and policy debates. The 'Werkstattgespräch' will give a local perspective on the interdependencies between the protracted conflict and the economic and political development.

Anatolii Dirun and Mihai Mogildea are research fellows at the IOS in the framework of the DAAD funded project Corridors – Dialogue though Cooperation. For further information: www.opencorridors.de
